

Federal Way

COMMUNITY PROFILE

Since becoming a city, Federal Way has grown into a major economic, political and social leader in the Puget Sound area. Federal Way's population of 95,171 (2015 estimate) makes it the ninth-largest city in the state.

Federal Way's greatest asset is its people, touting an involved, caring and culturally rich community that is willing to step up and get involved in it's development.

Ideally located between Seattle and Tacoma, Federal Way provides a distinct regional advantage. The ports of Seattle and Tacoma, the cities of the Eastside that make up the technology corridor and Sea-Tac Airport are all located within a 30-minute drive from. TOTE Maritime and World Vision both cite Federal Way's location a major factor for moving to this community.

Federal Way's commitment to active and passive recreation is evident in our many parks and trails. Celebration Park is recognized as one of the premier facilities for soccer and softball on the West Coast. The Weyerhaeuser/King County Aquatic Center is home to many national and international swimming and diving competitions. In addition, there is a trail system that extends throughout Federal Way that provides opportunity for outdoor activities and education surrounded by the natural habitats.

In the arts, there are more than 50 performing groups that call Federal Way home. The Knutzen Family Theatre is home to many performances throughout the year. The arts community is very active in promoting music, dance and visual arts to our citizens.

And, of course, the Federal Way School District has been recognized as one of the best school districts in the state, providing quality educational opportunities for approximately 22,000 students.
